The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 21, 1866.

Oregon Ratifies the Amendment.

Oregon has spoken upon the great question which divides political parties, and her voice is against Andrew Johnson and the combination of Copperheads and rebels who form the "new party." "Congress is sustained." Will any one dispute it now? As we did not pretend indifference to the fate of the amendment while it was before the Legislature, so we shall not now conceal the satisfaction we feel in seeing Oregon pronounce for this most important measure. Our State has not endorsed the reconstruction policy of Johnson; but it has declared for the plan of restoration presented by Congress. We have got a great victory! Oregon is the fifth State which has spoken, and she will soon be answered by every one of her Northern sisters. The ratification of the amendment is a vindication of the Union party of this State and the nation. Its rejection would have been our defeat, and bitterly would Unionists have felt the humiliation. But the danger is now overpast. It will go abroad that the Union party of Oregon, in spite of every opposition, maintains its ascendancy. The action on the amendment was the test which was to decide whether this State would sustain the tried party of the Union and its safe, though generous policy, or declare its approval of the wrongs and abominations of the policy of Andrew Johnson. We insist that Oregon has spoken. Our political opponents will be able to "see it" now. The election of a Union Senator next week, will complete the victory.

Encouraging Rebellion.

The address adopted by Johnson's Convention encourages and applauds sedition in the South, in the following words:

> The ten millions of Americans who live in the South would be unworthy citizens of a free country, degenerate sons of a heroic ancestry, unfit ever to become the guardians of the rights and liberties bequeathed to us by the fathers and founders of this republic, if they could accept with unconcerning submissiveness the humiliation thus sought to be imposed upon them.

Eastern journals state positively that Henry J. Raymond wrote this address. The "humiliation" alluded to in the above paragraph is the constitutional amendment now pending, and which the Southern States are requested to ratify. Considering that Raymond himself voted for this amendment when it passed the House of Representatives, it is a very cool piece of impudence even for the "little villain," to now accuse Congress of having adopted it for the purpose of tyrannizing over the South, and "humiliating" the people of those States. Was Raymond actuated by a desire of "imposing humiliation" upon them, when he voted for the amendment?

The object of this bit of buncombe was to flatter the "reconstructed" into a good humor, to awaken in them anew their old ideas of "chivalry," and to impress them with the belief that the Northern people are ready to be as submissive as ever in the presence of their former political masters. This was its object,—its effect will be to incite them to new acts of sedition and to repent the atrocities of Alexandria, Memphis, and New Orleans. It is a direct encouragement to further revolt, as it tells the rebels plainly that they are not expected by their political friends at the North to submit to the laws. It tells them that they would be "degenerate sons of a heroic ancestry," were they not to offer resistance to the supreme law-making power. Surely, Johnson's Convention' must have been composed of men who feel an unbounded admiration for the spirit manifested by the authors of the terrible riots which have occurred at different places in the South.

The Salem correspondent of the OREGONIAN says that the Union majority will march forward in well ordered column, till the constitutional amendment is ratified. If they do so they will probably have a long walk before them, and when they do bring up they will find themselves in the devil's dominions.—Herald, 19th inst.

The Union majority have finished their "long walk;" they have "brought up;" and the only indication they have of being in the "devil's dominions" arises from the fact that they are surrounded by a howling multitude who are gnashing their teeth at the thought of a good thing having been done.

The Walla Walla Statesman complains that partisan papers are not reliable, and as if to convince everybody that it is so, publishes such editorial paragraphs as the following, and that in the same column which is burdened with its complaint:

> General Butler has recently given his opinion of the New Orleans riot. We should like to have his version of the robberies that were perpetrated in the Crescent City whilst he held sway there. Could his experience be faithfully related, we doubt not that he would take rank as one of the greatest robbers and most accomplished villains of the age.

"MOSES" AND THE PROPHETS.—A correspondent of the Berlin (Wis.) Courant calls attention to the following scriptural prophecy, and wants to know who it means:

> "And through his policy also, he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart." And by peace shall he destroy many; he shall also stand up against the prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hands."—Daniel, Chap. 8, verse 25.

If the Democracy of the State have gained nothing else they have undoubtedly carried a majority of the Assembly which will effectually prevent the ratification by the Legislature of any of the seventy amendments to the Constitution of the United States, now pending in Congress.—Herald, June 7, 1866.

Oh! indeed. Sets the wind from the same quarter now? Has anything been heard lately from Salem?

A very great oversight has been noticed in the President's reception address to Queen Emma, of the Sandwich Islands. Through an unaccountable inadvertence, he neglected to inform her that he had once been an Alderman, and that he had risen gradually by his own merit to the highest place in the nation.

It is said that a company representing a cash capital of $70,000 is about to start a cheap paper at San Francisco on the plan of the Call. They have an excellent opening and we heartily wish the enterprise success.

If we do not mistake the signs of the times, the last Constitutional amendment will never pass the Oregon Legislature.—Herald Sept. 14.

Has anybody mistaken the signs of the times? If so, is our prophetic neighbor the man?

Will "Woodman" give us another letter in the Statesman against the Constitutional amendment? Or does he think he has given us enough already, and that his profound letters, like the Sibylline books, have the greater value, the fewer they are?

The largest brick yard in the world is to be established at Chicago. It will be 800 feet long by 600 wide, and will contain machinery adequate to the manufacture of 200,000 brick per day. A canal 2,000 feet long, 200 feet wide and 20 feet deep, is to be dug, connecting the yard with the south branch of the river—the earth excavated is to be used in the manufacture of brick. The work is to be commenced immediately, and the kilns will be burning this season.

When Benjamin Franklin died, he bequeathed in his will a thousand pounds to Boston, and a similar amount to Philadelphia, to assist industrious young mechanics to small loans. The Boston fund amounted, in February last, to $181,166 55, while that of Philadelphia was less than $10,000. The Yankees managed the trust either more shrewdly or more faithfully than those who have had charge of it in the Quaker City.

A QUESTIONER QUESTIONED.—A few days since one of the newly-fledged friends of the President approached an office-holder in a Massachusetts city with the inquiry, "Do you support the President?" "Certainly," replied the office-holder, "I not only support him, but voted for him; did you?" The new convert had no more questions to ask.

The Chicago Directory for this year has just been issued. It contains over seventy-four thousand names, being an increase over last year of over twenty thousand.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 19.

Soldiers' Convention.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—The Soldiers' Convention elected Gen. Gordon Granger, president, who made a speech, saying: Comrades, with an earnest and sincere desire to aid you in your effort to secure peace and prosperity to our country, I promise you my best efforts to discharge the duties you have imposed upon me.

Lewis D. Campbell moved for the appointment of a committee on resolutions, and that there be no other executive committee appointed, which was carried.

Gen. Wood addressed the convention, and congratulatory telegrams were read from Gen. Dix, Gen. J. H. Taylor, etc. Also the following telegram, which was received with loud applause:

MEMPHIS, TENN., Sept. 16.—To the President of the Soldiers' Convention at Cleveland. The soldiers of the late Confederate army met here this day, and elected the undersigned to congratulate your convention on your efforts to restore peace and gratitude to the country, and to express their deep sympathy with your patriotic purpose, and further to assure you that the Confederate soldiers are willing to leave the determination of their rights in citizens of the States and of the United States to the soldiers of the Union, and on our part we pledge security of life, person and property and freedom of speech and opinion to all. A mass meeting will be held to-morrow (Tuesday) night, to give formal expression to their purpose and sentiments. Signed by N. B. Forrest, L. Gallatta, Gallaway, Matthews, Dupreys, and others.

The Convention appointed a committee who sent the following answer: The Soldiers and Sailors' Convention to N. B. Forrest, etc. The National Union Convention assembled here, are profoundly grateful for the patriotic sentiments expressed in your despatch. We deal with pleasure every effort to restore peace and prosperity and brotherly affection throughout our country. War has its victories, but peace and Union are blessings for which we will manfully contend until harmony and justice are restored under the Constitution. Signed by Generals Granger, Sheridan, Custer, Wood, Crittenden and Governor Brannlette. The Convention then adopted resolutions and an address to the people and adjourned sine die.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A Cabinet meeting to-day continued several hours and was attended by all the members of the cabinet except Mr. Seward.

The Irish Executive Committee headed by Dr. A. N. Lizzel, John Hogan, of Missouri, P. O'Brien and others of prominence had an interview with the President this afternoon.

Commodore M. Smith has been appointed chief of the bureau of equipage and recruiting vice A. N. Smith, deceased.

The condition of Secretary Seward continues improving. He sat up a short time this morning, and his recovery is hopefully anticipated.

Union Senator in New Jersey.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The New Jersey Legislature yesterday elected Alexander M. Cottell, of Camden, United States Senator vice Stockton. The Democratic members entered a protest against the election, claiming that there was no vacancy and that the law of Congress prescribing the mode of electing Senators is unconstitutional.

Bank Failure.

TORONTO, Sept. 18.—The Bank of Upper Canada suspended payment this morning.

Government Finances.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the United States for the quarter ending June 30, exclusive of trust funds: receipts $3,213,230 02; expenditures $3,221,427 01.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Commercial's money article says: The upward movement of stocks is fully inaugurated, and gold is weak in anticipation of large receipts from Europe. Government stocks quiet and firm.

Central America and Mexican News.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The steamer New York, from Aspinwall, brings advices from Panama to the 12th. The Legislature has met and the election of Gen. Vicente Olarte as President, is announced.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Herald's Brazos Santiago correspondent says that Gen. Low Wallace's Mexican Billibustering movement for sometime past Gen. Sturge, of Illinois, Coolis & Co., New York agents for the sale of the Mexican bonds, with other parties in New York and Washington, contracted to supply Carvajal with five million dollars worth of war material. A shipment was forwarded and the balance was getting ready for shipment. Carvajal has also contracted for three million dollars worth of hospital stores, and the contractors are pledged to realize fabulous prices. The great object of all this supply of material of war and medical stores was for the equipment of a force of 20,000 Americans who were to be recruited in New Orleans, New York and other points within the United States. Maj.-Gen. Wallace was to command this force, which was to concentrate at Matamoras previous to an advance to the interior. This force was to wait for Wallace at Matamoras. He had an interview with Gen. Caravajal. The result was a telegram sent by Wallace to New Orleans to forward immediately 5,000 men. The Liberal Gen. Caravajal an exile and resident of Brownsville. Wallace countermanded his order for 5,000 men, and much disgusted with the change in affairs, now proceeds to Monterey to see President Juarez.

NEWS BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 17th—P. M.—The steamer Great Eastern, from Heart's Content, is off Valentia.

PARIS, Sept. 17th.—A French circular says the recent changes in Europe are favorable to France. Prussia and Italy are drawn nearer in ideas and interest. America has now no hostile interest. The Convention at Prague will be loyally carried out. The navies of the second class powers assume the liberty of the Baltic and Mediterranean. The note justifies an offer of the Emperor's mediation between Prussia, Austria, and Italy, and hints at the separation of people of the same language and interests from any of the powers of Europe. It shows the necessity of perfect defense and military organization, not however as a threats, and expresses the belief in a lasting peace in Europe.

PARIS, Sept. 17th—P. M.—It is said that the Emperor has refused to allow the officers of the French army to hold office in Mexico, owing to the protest of the United States Government.

LONDON, Sept. 18—Evening.—Consols closed at 89¼ for money. 89¾ for ¼.

The Memorial Diplomatique, speaking of the share of debt falling on Italy in consequence of the cession of Venetia, says: Following the mode adopted by the Conference of London, on the occasion of the separation of Belgium from the Kingdom of Holland, the Austrian Plenipotentiaries at Zurich, divided under two heads the Austrian debt, which was conceived in the Lombardy liabilities, properly so-called, after long negotiations, were fixed at one hundred and fifty millions of francs. The second had for its object the general debt of the Empire. The Austrian plenipotentiaries demanded that the latter should be shared in proportion to the population of Lombardy, as had taken place between Holland and Belgium. Had that course been adopted, the amount would have been five hundred million francs. Sardinia refused to assume so considerable a sum, but thanks to the arbitration of the Emperor of the French, this second branch of the claim was reduced to one thousand million francs, so that the total sum with which Sardinia was charged under both heads, was settled by the treaty of Zurich, at two hundred and fifty million francs. In the negotiations which are taking place relative to Venetia, the determination of the amount of debt has been left to the ulterior deliberations of the Plenipotentiaries assembled at Vienna. Considering all the circumstances, it seems true that the definitive sum can't be less than two hundred million francs.

The Coal Beds on Snake River.

FAREWELL BEND, Snake River, September 12, 1866.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

As any discoveries which will eventually benefit this country are supposed to be of interest to you, I drop you a few lines, the result of my operations during the last few days.

I visited the coal bank of Messrs. Packwood & Co., at a point three miles south of this place, and was much surprised to find so good a vein of coal as they have there. The croppings were originally found near the water's edge and are discernible for a distance of about one half-mile above and below the tunnel.

The enterprising proprietors have run a tunnel a distance of 260 feet into the mountain and timbered it with eight-inch square timbers four and a half by seven feet and have erected a powerful pump, of the Hanshrow patent, which will enable them to keep their works dry.

At this point the veins of coal, which have heretofore maintained a nearly level course, dip at an angle of thirty degrees with the horizon. The cap or hanging wall, which was a soft clay, has changed to a fine grained rock. The strata of clay, which are interlaid with the veins of coal, are also slowly becoming thinner and changing into coal. The thickness of the veins of coal, together with the interlaying strata of clay, is about fifteen feet from hanging wall to foot wall, the coal veins comprising about eight feet of the distance and consisting of veins of from one to three feet in thickness.

The coal has been pronounced by numerous parties who have tried it, as an excellent quality of bituminous coal, suitable for all purposes of blacksmith work and also excellent for generating steam. By its discovery the great obstacle to the navigation of Snake River, for want of fuel, from this point upward to Salmon Falls, is overcome.

The proprietors have also discovered the croppings of another vein at a point about 200 feet above the water's edge, which bids fair to prove equally as good as it is at this point.

In my next, if you see fit to pass a favorable sentence upon this, I will give you some items concerning some late discoveries of valuable quartz ledges in this vicinity and reaching up to Mormon Basin, Rye Valley, Clark's Creek and Burnt River Canyon.

ADIOS.

A FELLOW-FEELING MAKES US WONDROUS KIND.—It is related that recently in a sleeping car on one of the Eastern railroads, a man in one of the berths became greatly annoyed by the crying of an infant and the efforts of its father to pacify it. The irate individual at last shouted out: "What the d—l is the matter with that young one?" And soon again: "Where is the mother of that child, that she is not here to pacify it?" At this the poor gentleman in charge of the child stepped up to the berth and said: "Sir, the mother of that child is in her coffin in the baggage car!" The grumbler immediately arose and compelled the afflicted father to retire to his berth, and from that time until morning took the little orphan under his own care.

INSTANTANEOUS CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.—To make a drunken man sober in a minute, give him acetate of ammonia cold and a half ounce, which immediately sobers him. It is a very cheap article, perfectly harmless, and is easily prepared in all good drug stores.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Ratification of the Amendment!

SALEM, September 20, 1866.

After a long debate, the Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was ratified by the House last evening at nine o'clock. The vote stood Ayes 25, Noes 21, all the Union members except Lockhart of Coos and Curry voting in the affirmative.

SALEM, Sept. 20—7:10 P. M.

The House has been engaged all day on the Grant County contest, taking evidence. The motion pending is a motion to adopt Hinmann's report unseated to sitting members. House adjourned. Argument to-morrow.

OREGON LEGISLATURE.

Fourth Regular Session.

Senate.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 19th, 1866.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Williams.

INTRODUCTION AND FIRST READING OF BILLS.

Mr. DOLPH introduced S. B. No. 3—Relating to common schools. The rules were suspended and the bill read by title.

Mr. MILLER introduced S. B. No. 4—To regulate elections.

SECOND READING OF BILLS.

S. B. No. 1—To tax and protect Chinamen coming in Oregon, was read first time and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

S. B. No. 2—To amend the civil code, referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. JEFFRIES gave notice that he would move to amend Senate Rule 43, by striking out all that part of it which admits members of the House within the bar of the Senate.

Mr. CRAWFORD moved to adjourn. Lost.

On motion of Mr. CARTWRIGHT, the Senate took a recess till half past eleven this A. M.

11:30 A. M.—The Senate was called to order by the President.

Mr. CALDWELL moved to adjourn, which was lost.

Mr. HUSTON. I find a paper here from George L. Woods relating to Indian depredations in Eastern Oregon. I move to refer it to the Committee on Claims. I would like to know what claims the people of Eastern Oregon have on us Webfeel.

The PRESIDENT ruled the motion out of order, as the message was not in possession of the Senate. A matter not in possession of the Senate cannot be referred.

Mr. FORD moved to refer the communication signed George L. Woods to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PRESIDENT. The Chair will not entertain the motion. The communication is not before the Senate. The motion is out of order.

Mr. FORD. I did not move to refer as the Governor's message, but as information from an individual.

Mr. PRESIDENT. If the gentleman will embody the information in a motion or resolution, or in any way put the information in possession of the Senate, the motion to refer will be entertained.

Mr. JEFFRIES offered a resolution embodying the text of the Governor's special message, and to refer the same to the Committee on Military affairs. [The printed message contained in Mr. Jeffries' resolution is an advance printed copy of a special message not yet transmitted to the Senate.—REPORTER.]

Mr. KYLE raised a point of order: that the same motion—to refer—had been before made and ruled out of order.

The PRESIDENT said the resolution set out the information, and it was therefore in possession of the Senate. The question will be to refer the resolution to the Committee on Military Affairs. The resolution is before the Senate and the motion to refer will be entertained.

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. JEFFRIES. I am getting hungry, and therefore move to adjourn. The motion was negatived.

Mr. PYLE offered a resolution to appoint a committee of three to invite the members of the House to meet the Senate forthwith in joint convention to elect an United States Senator.

Mr. MILLER moved to adjourn, which prevailed, 12 to 10.

AFTERNOON—2 O'CLOCK.

Mr. PYLE moved to lay on the table the resolution to invite members of the House into Joint Convention, pending when the Senate adjourned. The motion prevailed.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. PYLE rose to a question of privilege and said: I desire to call the attention of the Senate to a remark made before the adjournment by the gentleman from Lane, which reflected invidiously upon my constituents. My duty as a Representative in the Legislature of the people of a portion of Eastern Oregon, demands that I call the attention of the Senate to that remark, and to express my disapprobation of it. [Here the speaker quoted the remarks of Mr. Huston: "I desire to know what claims the people of Eastern Oregon have upon us Webfeet?"] Sir, in my estimation that remark is a gross, outrageous and inexcusable insult to the people of Eastern Oregon. It is an insult not only to my constituents, but to the constituents of the gentleman from Lane. I care not whether such language be used to raise a laugh, or to convey insult, it is not proper language to use here or elsewhere. I cannot conceive the propriety of making report of the fact that the people east of the mountains are being killed and robbed.

Mr. PRESIDENT called Mr. Pyle to order, stating that no question being before the Senate, general discussion of any matter is out of order.

Mr. PYLE. I desired to call the attention of the Senate to the remark.

Mr. HUSTON. I wish to make a correction—

Mr. PRESIDENT. The gentleman will come to order; there is nothing before the Senate, and discussion is out of order.

Mr. HUSTON. I am misrepresented. Would like to make a correction.

Mr. HINDALE moved that the Senate go into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of this matter.

The PRESIDENT ruled the motion out of order as nothing had been referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HALYDAY moved to adjourn—lost.

Mr. JOHNSON moved to take a recess till 4 P. M., which prevailed.

At 4 o'clock P. M. the Senate was called to order.

On Motion of Mr. STERNS the Senate adjourned till to-morrow.

House.

SALEM, Wednesday, Sept. 19th 1866.

Session opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Hungate of the Baptist Church. Journal read and approved.

Mr. HUMASON presented a petition from citizens of the Dalles, praying for a repeal of the act incorporating Dalles City. Referred to a select committee consisting of Messrs Humason, Upton and Herman.

Mr. OLNEY presented the biennial report of the Pilot Commissioner, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

THE AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

Mr. OLNEY, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee to whom had been referred the Senate joint resolution to ratify the Amendment to the United States Constitution, reported it back, recommending its adoption. He said that it had been agreed by the two political sides of the House that this measure should be fairly disposed of to-day. He had no speech to make on the question. Thought every man had made up his mind about it, and that it had been thoroughly discussed by the public press and elsewhere. He was willing, however, to spend the day in listening to arguments from those who wish to discuss the matter.

Messrs. Helm, Worth, Gehr and Cox protested against the manner of making the report, claiming that the committee had not been duly consulted. They also disclaimed having made any agreement as to the disposition of the resolution.

Messrs. Olney and Upton replied to the charge of informality, showing that the majority of the committee concurred in the report.

Mr. COX moved to lay upon the table, which motion after an extended discussion, was lost—ayes 29; nays 29.

The question recurring on the adoption of the report of the committee, [recommending that the joint resolution be concurred in, Mr. Whiteaker arose to address the Chair, and at 11:30 P. M. on motion the House adjourned, with an understanding that Mr. Whiteaker should have the floor in the morning.

AFTERNOON.

House met pursuant to adjournment. The galleries had vacant space without the bar were crowded with an animated audience.

Messrs. Whiteaker and Conlee opposition to, and Messrs. Brents, Chenoweth and Herman, in favor of the resolutions, addressed the House at length.

On motion of Mr. LOCKHART, at 5:20 P. M. the House took a recess till 7 o'clock P. M.

EVENING.

On reconvening at 7 o'clock P. M. the galleries were crowded as before.

Messrs. Helm, Withers and Humason continued the discussion in opposition to the proposition, and Mr. Starkweather in its favor.

At 9:20 P. M. Mr. LOCKHART moved the previous question, which was sustained by a vote of 26 ayes to 20 nays. Mr. Fondray being absent on account of illness.

The main question being put resulted as follows:

AYES—Messrs. Brents, Cole, Davis, Day, Garlick, Garrett, Gingles, Herman, Jackson, Langdin, Lecey, McLain, McKean, Nicklin, Olney, Parris, Roland, Rosenheim, Starkweather, Stouffer, Upton, White, Witzel and Mr. Speaker—25.

NAYS—Messrs. Avery, Baird, Cochran, Cox, Dempsey, Hodges, Fondray, Gehr, Hendershott, Helm, Hindman, Humason, Lockhart, Loring, Moore, Rose, Smith, Wells, Whiteaker, Withers, and Worth—21.

On motion of Mr. UPTON permission was granted to Mr. Fondray to record his name hereafter on this question. He will vote in the negative, making 22 nays.

Mr. OLNEY moved to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was adopted.

Mr. GARLICK moved to indefinitely postpone Mr. Olney's motion carried: 26 ayes to 20 nays, Mr. Lockhart voting aye.

On motion at 9:30 P. M., adjourned, amid shouts of applause from the galleries and congratulations on the floor.

SPOTLESS.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY, 89 First Street, is the place to get those SPOTLESS SUN PEARLS, CARD PICTURES, PEARL AMBROTYPES, Etc., Etc. Experience tells us that "the best are always the cheapest," which accounts for the large number of sitters who daily visit this Establishment. Pictures taken equally well in sunny or cloudy weather.

The Graefenberg Company's Uterine CATHOLICON does not contain one particle of calomel or mercury, and cases of Female Complaints which require other treatment than the Catholicon are extremely rare. It should be used in all cases of Deranged Monthly Periods, Weakness, Irregular Appetite, Nervousness, Headache, Disturbed Sleep, Cold Stomach, Sour-ea, Indigestion and Pains and Difficulties connected with the Uterine Organs.

THE UTERINE CATHOLICON

Is a most successful remedy for Gravel and all affections of the Kidneys and Bladder, while in the forgoing symptoms attending Pregnancy, the benefit of the Catholicon are most remarkable. It is a perfect restorer of functional and general health, from budding womanhood to the turn of life, and those patrons who have used the GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S UTERINE CATHOLICON find difficulty in expressing their thankfulness for the beneficial effects of this wonderful medicine

FROM OWYHEE.—By a private letter from T. B. Lowe to a gentleman in this city, we learn that "the excitement attending the failure of the Moore & Fogus company has almost subsided. It passed off without exciting, shouting or hanging. Mr. Moore addressed his creditors a few evenings ago; he succeeded in exonerating himself from criminal complicity in the causes which brought the failure. In concluding his remarks he used words similar to those used by the sinner who said, "Here, Lord, I give myself away, 'tis all that I can do." Moore did as he should have done, and strange to say, he was appreciated. The Lake Store still held the two Fleo mines, but as their attitude is illegal they must yield before long. Mark A. King is at his old business once doing all they can to conciliate matters and bring order out of confusion. The larger creditors propose to buy the property of Moore & Fogus and incorporate a joint stock company, and allow the smaller creditors to receive the amounts of their claims out of the profits arising from the working of the mines. If few days more and the whole business will be settled. All of the "failure of Moore & Fogus" will belong to the evil of the past. Many think it will prove a blessing in the end, as it will do away with the "order system," and regulate the price of labor. Owyhee is in a more prosperous condition to-day, all misfortunes included, than ever before. The Poorman is yielding richer ore than ever, and is paying regularly ten thousand dollars per day, employing twenty-seven stamps. The Silver Bow, belonging to the Cosmos Company, glitters with gold, pays enormously, and is pronounced the richest and best defined mine in Owyhee. New discoveries are being made almost every day. There are hundreds of ledges in Cocoa District which show indications of good mines, and when properly developed will no doubt prove lasting and valuable. My honest convictions are that in less than two years there will be $20 million in successful operation in Owyhee." The business men of Portland should look to their "future" and do all in their power to strengthen and foster our trade with Owyhee by visiting them and establishing now a relation with them. The wealth of Owyhee will pay a large tribute to Oregon.

PORTLAND FIRE DEPARTMENT.—The purchase of a steam fire engine by the members of Multnomah Company No. 2, was most opportune event, as was shown on the night of the 5th. That fire did much to prove the value of steam fire engines. To coax our city was so unfortunate as to have three or four large fires in rapid succession, the task would then be the most apparent that steam fire engines can accomplish, as it was very hard, indeed, to keep the hand machines at work at the late fires, while the steamer did execution continually. At the last meeting of the Common Council No. 4 Company petitioned for a steamer. In case the city is able to make the purchase at this time, we think that company entitled to a steamer. No. 1 Company have also petitioned for a new hose carriage—the one they have is a very poor concern, and as that company of late years has made all nothing of conveying from the city, their claims in this, at least, ought to be favorably considered. The applications of Couch Engine Company No. 5, for admission to the Department is now in the hands of a committee of the Board of Delegates, and we hope to see the company admitted—they may be able to procure a steam fire engine; the members are deserving men and able firemen. Tigiaus Hose and Ladder Company No. 1 have accomplished much through their own exertions, and feel that in case the truck formerly used by them can be disposed of, they are entitled to the proceeds, to be appropriated for the purchase of a bell for their house. At the meeting of the Council on Wednesday evening an order was passed the board authorizing five hundred feet of new hose for No. 3 Company. Every company in the Department is being filled with good men, and all taken together the Department is flourishing.

CEMENT BUILDINGS.—The Napa Register makes some special suggestions upon concrete houses. It says: "The use of concrete—a mixture of lime, sand, gravel and broken stone—for walls of buildings, has been adopted in some parts of the Eastern States to a considerable extent, in this State we hear that concrete has been adopted in a few localities, but are inclined to think that the advantages of this article for the walls of buildings are not appreciated as they should be. We are led to speak of this subject from having recently visited the new residence of Mr. Thomas Earl, to whom belongs the honor of having built the first concrete house in this county. The building in question is of two stories and 34 by 36 feet, and its walls are 12 inches thick. It has stood for four years in an unfinished condition, having only a roof to protect it from storms, and was thus left in order to test its strength and stability. Instead of falling into decay, as some anticipated, the walls grow harder and firmer, and now that the house is completed, any one may easily see at a glance, that it is not only stronger, but neater in appearance than the best brick building that can be built. The house of Mr. Earl is a perfect gem of a dwelling inside and out, and we greatly mistake if he compete as not followed by many of our citizens. In fact, good qualities concrete is quite equal to brick or stone, and is in so cheap that the poorest can have no excuse for not having wooden dwellings. It is the very thing for farm-houses, especially where stone, gravel and lime are easy of access. The whole work of building the walls can be done by common laborers, and when done the material will stand for centuries. A poor man can build his house with only a few days' labor, only requiring skillful mechanic to finish. Even when a house is finished in finished with cement and paint, and sanded while stone, in the most perfect manner, the expense is less than one-half that of a brick building."

THE CANYON CITY SUFFERERS.—We are pleased to learn that the wounds inflicted upon Mr. Wheeler, stage driver on the Canyon City route, are not likely to result as dismally as at first expected. Mr. Jones, messenger of Wells, Fargo & Co., last evening informed us that Mr. Wheeler had arrived safely at the Dalles, where he would receive the very best of medical attention. The ball, fired upon him by an Indian, took effect in the head, passing entirely through both cheeks, but did not injure the tongue as reported. The roof of the mouth was partially shot away, but it is thought that the sufferer will be able to survive the wound, and be but slightly disfigured. Mr. Page, in falling from his horse, and fighting the Indians, was injured so much that it has been necessary for him to remain at Camp Watson ever since. Clark's Station was destroyed on the day following the attack upon the stage. The horses, barn, hay, grain, and everything else, were burned. Mr. Clark escaped with his life. Mr. Marston, his brother-in-law, ran very narrow escapes, and barely saved himself by hiding from the savages. He was so closely pursued that it became necessary for him to seek shelter in a place which was particularly hard for him to get out of. He was very much exhausted, and has not recovered from the effects of his race for life. The Indians have apparently committed no further depredations, but this peace is a quiet cannot last a great deal of time, unless protection sufficient to awe them is afforded settlers and stations on the route.

THE SHOOTING ELEMENT.—Mr. A. Kinney, writing to Mr. A. G. Bradford of this city under date of September 26th, at Laity's on Clatsop beach, says: "The week has been an eventful one, and we have bagged everything in the way of game, except bear. The summary of the week's sport is: three elk, three panther, two wild-cats, one fawn seal, two geese, and trout innumerable. I think the month of September is a famous one for sporting here. Now and then we find a stray curlew—I got one yesterday. I have a big panther story to tell you when I see you, and I will try and give you a taste of it next; in return for the cartridges you sent. I had left Portland with nothing larger than trout hooks, and was entirely out of cartridges, with nothing larger than No. 8 shot, when your package was received. I wish Major Rains was here; I was disappointed that he did not come. Game is abundant." P. F. Bradford's gun, Mr. Kinney further states, has been immortalized. This is one of the very best guns that could be produced upon the range. Mr. K. has a pair of horns from an elk which took the "shot" to-perfection on one of the excursions of the hunting party, which will be worth seeing.

FOOT RACE.—The benefit of Mr. Franklin gained last evening with a Brannan's foot race. Prize, one silver [illegible]. Nine men entered for the contest. The distance was 700 yards: Harry Weed, of No. 1, ran 8 rounds, half the distance, 3 minute—no race. Lewis Young, of No. 3, ran ten 10 rounds in 1.51, winning the trumpet. No. 2, time 2.06; S. Barthell, No. 2, 2.36; A. Ward, No. 2, 7 rounds, time 1.38; Wm. Bacon, No. 4, 4.22; A. J. Gray, No. 4, 2.01; F. C. Payne, Vigilant, 2.35; Thos. Moffitt, same Co., 2.10.

IN THE SAN PABLO SPORT.—Mr. Jacob Mayer, of the City of Paris store, has decided upon closing out his stock of dry goods before the first of January, 1867, on account of the expiration of his lease to the premises at present occupied. The store fixtures and show cases will also be sold for advantage.

TRUTH.—We are again called upon—being reminded by a large bundle of papers—to thank Capt. McCormick of the Franklin Book Store, for late papers. At his place of business to-day will be found all the very latest newspapers, illustrated weeklies, and magazines. Give him a call.

CHICKEN HOUSES.—Chickens and chickens were in active demand yesterday, being purchased by the Chinese residents for a general feast to-day. We were unable to learn what remarkable event has transpired in ancient days to be still observed at this particular time.

MUSIC.—We would call attention to the advertisement of Mr. I. T. Shultz, dealer in pianos, melodeons, sheet music, &c. Mr. Shultz is well versed in all wants in his line. We would advise all to give him a call and examine his goods.

FROM SALEM.—Gov. Woods and family arrived last evening from Salem and are stopping at the Lincoln House. During the evening the Governor favored our office with a call.

ARRIVED.—R. R. Thompson, Esq., who has been absent in Owyhee for several weeks, returned on Wednesday evening. He proposes to visit the Capital, leaving to-morrow.

AUCTION SALE.—Kilbourn's regular sale takes place to-day. In addition to the usual stock of Furniture, Groceries, etc., the complete Fixtures of an Oyster Stand is advertised in another column.

PIONEER HOSE CLUB.—The members of the Pioneer Hall Club are requested to parade on the grounds, corner Fifth and Oak street, at 4 o'clock A. M., for practice.

REHEARSAL.—The Philharmonic Society meet at their rooms over Randall's music store this evening, for rehearsal.

SUNSET DRILL.—The Zouave Cadets, under command of Capt. Snodgrass, will meet for street drill this evening at 7 o'clock.

IN STOCK.—Several members of the Third House refreshed from Salem last evening.

LADIES' HAIR DRESSING.—The ladies of our city will be pleased to learn that one of their sex, accomplished in the art of dressing the hair, has lately arrived from the East, and offers her services in that capacity. Her parlors will find her at the present by leaving orders at No. 8 First street.

Attention! Portland Zouave Cadets.—You will meet this evening at 7 o'clock at your Armory, in Full Uniform for Street Drill. By order of Humiliation and Degradation.

Senator Dixon said, in his speech at the Connecticut Convention, to elect delegates to the Randall Philadelphia Assembly: "The plan proposed by Congress is infamous. It proceeds upon the ground of compelling the States lately in rebellion to submit to humiliating and degrading terms."

What are those terms? First, that they shall not have gained political power in the Government by the rebellion. Second, that those who violated their oaths to the Constitution shall not be eligible to office until Congress removes the disability.

Those are the conditions which Mr. Dixon calls humiliating and degrading. We ask any honest and manly ex-rebel if he thinks so? We ask him if he would not consider the Government humiliated if after it has failed his effort to destroy it, it should invite him to increased power in it; or if he would think himself degraded after he had violated his oath—however his conscience may have justified him—if those whom that violation had brought to mortal suffering and loss should hold him ineligible to office until they saw that all danger had passed?

Mr. Dixon merely follows the lead of the Copperhead chiefs in telling the late insurgents that Congress means to humiliate and degrade them; assuring them that there is a party at the North which will support that view, and urging them to hold out and refuse to enter Congress unless they can come with more power than those who have not rebelled. And this incitement to the late insurgents to remain hostile to the representatives of the loyal people Mr. Dixon calls, "an effort to restore peace and good-will to a distracted country." Does Mr. Dixon think that calling vinegar honey makes it honey?—Harper's Weekly.

"Is a man and his wife one?" asked the wife of a man in a state of stupefaction, as he was holding his aching head in both his hands. "Yes, I suppose so," was the reply. "Well then," said she, "I came home very drunk last night, and I ought to be ashamed of myself."

We answer, 'tis an easy task,
Strengthen the stomach, and sustain
The NERVES, the regulator of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and build and refresh the inner man,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS!" we reply,
IS HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTOR—YET!

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-tainted low heavy air,
Drink not unmixed with the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is threefold evil to prevent:
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that engulf the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters take—for unto
Them are the surest antidote
To set at defiance the poisons of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work-rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with

Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and depress the mind:
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make life a constant misery-dom;
Colics and dysentric pains,
'Neath which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
Ne'er conquered yet by pills or drastic pills;
Dread diarrhœa that cannot be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration; mental gloom—
Heralds of madness or the tomb;
For these—though all moral nostrums fail—
Means of Relief at least we hail,
Hostetter's Bitters!—medicine sure,
Not to pretend, alone, but cure.

The Prussian Needle-Gun.

In examining the history of any mechanical invention, one fact which comes prominently forward is the constant tendency of the inventor to range in advance of the mechanical and scientific appliances at his disposal. With a prescience which seems intuitive, he anticipates whilst he is furthering the march of improvement, and skill of future generations to carry out his ideas. This is especially noticeable in the history of breech-loading fire-arms. There exist in our museums dozens of contrivances of this kind, which have been tried and abandoned in their day as useless or uncertain, but which, in the present state of our mechanical and chemical knowledge, may easily be rendered available. As an illustration, we may mention that the Snider principle, to which we are now converting the Enfield muzzle-loader, is identical in the main features of its mechanism with the very earliest specimen of a breech-loading small-arm in England—viz: a harquebus of the time of King Henry VIII., A. D. 1537, which may be seen in the Armory of the Tower of London (Class 12, No. 4.)

On Dec. 13, 1831, the first patent for the needle-gun, which recent events have made so famous, was taken out in the English Patent Office. In the quaint phraseology of the specification we read: "To all to whom these presents may come, Abraham Adolph Moser, of 2, Canterbury-row, Kennington, in the county of Surrey, engineer, sends greeting." One-third of a century later the greeting of Abraham Moser came to the King of Denmark in the defeat of Duppul, and to the Emperor of Austria in the deadly slaughter and rout of Konigratz. How many more crude ideas are lying hid in the same mine of invention, to be wrought and tempered by succeeding generations, till they are fashioned into working tools as potent as this one has proved?

The original idea of Moser had reference principally to the method of igniting the charge—the detonating powder is attached to a wad placed in front of the powder and behind the projectile. The needle, being struck forward through the powder chamber, discharges the fulminate and ignites the powder in front of the charge, instead of behind it, as in the ordinary percussion gun. His drawings show the application of this principle to a muzzle-loader, and a cartridge containing an elongated bullet for a musket. This was the needle-gun in its original form, and its novelty attracted some attention at the time. But Moser was at least a quarter of a century in advance of his generation. The ideas that a cartridge could be made to carry its own ignition, or that the proper shape for a projectile was elongated instead of spherical, were too extravagant to obtain investigation in practical England. It is quite true that our Government has since come to adopt both these troublesome notions as essential in any future weapon; but we live and learn, and like children of lesser growth we have a natural and instinctive dislike to new teachers. So, failing in England, the inventor tried his fortune abroad, and in one European country—Prussia—he met with encouragement. His plan was tried and eventually adopted, with various modifications and improvements suggested by Dreyse, a gunmaker of Sommerda, by whom the breech-loading arrangement was applied in 1835. The gun which was definitely introduced in the Prussian service in 1848 is the pattern with which the bulk of the Prussian infantry is still armed. The mechanism at the breech of the gun very much resembles the ordinary bolt of a street door, and in the same way has a large projecting knob, or handle, by which it is moved into or out of the grooved catch which fastens it. Clumsy and unsightly as this knob is, it is thoroughly effective in enabling the mechanism to be worked under any conditions of dirt, rust, or fouling, or by fingers numbed with cold or fatigue. In the body of this bolt the arrangement for cocking and discharging the needle is inclosed, and this part of the contrivance is extremely simple. Five pieces, including the needle and spring, serve the office of the fourteen pieces employed in the ordinary gun-lock and hammer; and these five are so arranged that they can be taken apart, cleaned, and replaced by the soldier in a few minutes without the use of any tools but his fingers; or the breech-piece can be entirely removed, and the gun rendered useless, if he be compelled to abandon it to the enemy.

The drawings shown will give an idea of the mechanism by which this is effected; but a better notion may, perhaps, be obtained by examining the interior of the barrel of an ordinary child's toy-gun, in which the spiral spring which fires the wooden pellet, and the method of retaining and discharging it by the direct action of the trigger, are precisely similar to the lock of the needle gun. This simplicity was accompanied by corresponding cheapness, the actual cost of the gun being only 34s. 9d., English. In 1850 several rifles on this model were made by the Government factory at England, and condemned, partly from the supposed danger of having the fulminate contained in the cartridge, but mainly from the escape of gas round the needle. It did not occur to the authorities to inquire whether this defect existed to the same extent in the Prussian arm.

The value and importance of the invention was very quickly appreciated by the Prussian Minister, Baron von Manteuffel, and from the time of its introduction to the present, no pains have been spared to perfect the mechanism, and to train the soldier to the best method of employing it to advantage. At the same time it has been the fashion of the chief officers of the Prussian army to depreciate this weapon in conversation, and to lay great stress on the trifling difficulties which occurred in its introduction. It was said to be uncertain; liable to escape of gas, dangerous to the soldier, they were going to abandon it, but they had got so many of them—and so forth. The effect of these reports was (perhaps unintentionally) to mislead the majority of inquirers. But, with our present experience of Count Bismarck's diplomacy, it is scarcely unobservable to surmise that these rumors are policy, which has been so far successful that, even at the present day, it is the fashion in England to speak of the needle-gun as a very inferior specimen of a breech-loading arm. It is quite true that at the present time we have a few other plans which combine the same quickness of loading with greater accuracy; but at the time this arm was adopted in the Prussian service it was undoubtedly the best, and is still one of the best, of breech-loading small arms. In the latest Prussian modification of this weapon, the space occupied by the mechanism of the needle is reduced, so as to occupy only half the space; the whole gun is lighter and more manageable; the needle, of which each soldier carries two in reserve, can be exchanged in a minute; and except that it requires a turn-screw, which the original plan dispensed with, it can be dismounted and cleaned with the same facility.

The pattern of the cartridge like the mechanism of the lock, has been frequently changed and experimented upon; but in all the various patterns the principles of Moser's invention are retained in the position of the fulminate and the elongated projectile. In the cartridge a new and a very doubtful principle is, however, introduced. The bullet which fits into a pasteboard sabot or shoe containing the fulminate to be exploded by the touch of the needle, is made so small that it does not touch the barrel in its passage through it, the rotation of the rifling being communicated by the sabot only. Thus perfect cleanliness is ensured, absence of leading (as the bullet never touches the barrel), and of fouling, since the barrel is wiped clean during each discharge by the pasteboard case. The powder also serves to extract the exploded cartridge-case, avoiding the separate mechanism generally employed for this purpose; but these advantages, undoubtedly great, are obtained at the sacrifice of accuracy. The Prussian needle-gun with the muzzle-loading Enfield, for precision to 500 yards, and its maximum of efficiency, even against masses of troops, is 700 yards, the Enfield being effective at 900. In short, in this arm the main feature is quickness, which the progress of Prussia may help to teach us, is likely to prove of supreme importance in modern warfare. In the converted Enfield rifle, we have succeeded in obtaining the same rapidity, with increased solidity and much greater accuracy.

But, before quitting the Prussian needle-gun, it may be as well to say a few words upon one of the rumors which has been lately very industriously spread in England, to the effect that the cartridge is so great a secret that it cannot be manufactured except in Prussia. This assertion, like most of such tales, once contained a portion of truth. When first introduced, the smaller diameter of the bullet, which would escape any but very accurate measurement, was a secret, as also the composition of the percussion powder, which in the Prussian cartridges remains unchanged after fifteen years, though the usual fulminates deteriorate rapidly. There is no novelty in the composition of the powder, which is generally the fulminate of mercury intimately combined with meal gunpowder; but it is mixed with collodion and moulded into the cartridge whilst moist. The collodion adds nothing but combustible matter (gun-cotton) to the mixture, and it forms an impervious varnish, preserving its contents from alteration by time or temperature. This simple expedient, though well known to chemists, has not yet been adopted in our own manufacture of cartridges.—London Illustrated News, July 28.

Gen. Albert L. Lee, a gallant and distinguished officer in the late war, has entered the list of U. S. Senators, to fill out Jim Lane's term, which ends in 1871. Senator Pomeroy's term, ending next spring, is also to have a successor.

The wife of the French Consul was seriously wounded by a stray shot during the New Orleans riot.

Another Rebel Victory—With Results.

The subjoined article is from the St. Louis Democrat of August 22d:

The election in Arkansas has resulted, as every one expected, in a rebel victory. Perhaps we ought to say a Johnson victory, considering that it was immediately followed, as in Kentucky, by marked developments of "my policy."

The election was altogether rebel. Candidates who had been Union men withdrew in advance, or were unmercifully slaughtered. Between the rest, the question was "which did rebellion?" That man, whatever qualifications or disqualifications he may have had, was regularly elected. Candidates who announced that they "could not take the oath," were chosen in preference. There is no need of dwelling upon details; our telegraphic columns give them. In brief, every member of Congress apparently elected is a thorough rebel; the large majority in the Legislature are intense, rabid and relentless traitors. They now propose to call a new Convention as soon as possible, to change the Constitution, and to turn out the present loyal State officers without delay.

The rebel victory was followed by its usual fruits. Union men are found hanging from the trees. General Thayer, Senator elect from Nevada, who arrived in this city from Little Rock yesterday, informed us that within a circuit of fifty miles of that town, three Union men were taken out of their houses at night by armed parties and were hanged, and two others were abducted in like manner, who have not yet been found or heard from. A published letter from Colonel H. B. Allis, Speaker of the Arkansas House in 1863 and 1864, dated from another quarter, says:

"Two men were found hanging about thirty miles from here. One was a member of the last Legislature, and had been guilty of piloting the Federals through the country. Two more are missing. Bands of murderers are traversing the country in different parts, committing all sorts of depredations. The rebels are thoroughly organized, and I think these raids are committed by organized companies of Confederates, still acting as they did during the war. The cavalry of the army are all withdrawn from our part. A few infantry are all we have, and they are powerless, except for local defense, so they range the country with impunity."

General Thayer states that, beyond the larger towns, the whole State is now no longer safe for loyal men, and many of them are hastily leaving. In the towns, though comparatively safe from violence, they are persecuted in business and other ways so as to drive them from the State. These are some of the workings of "my policy" in Arkansas. "My policy" is to put loyal men at the mercy of rebels. The consequences are that loyal men are murdered, abducted or driven from the State. The question for Missouri is whether "my policy" shall rule in this State also? If loyal men, looking over into Kentucky and Arkansas, and listening to the news from New Orleans, like the prospect, they will, of course, vote the Johnson ticket.

About Literary Men.—All the friends of Sterne know him to be a most selfish man; yet as a writer, he excelled in pathos and charity—at one time beating his wife, at another wasting his sympathies over a dead donkey. So Seneca wrote in praise of poverty, on a table formed of solid gold, with millions let out at usury. It is a remarkable fact that the mass of poetry which gave Burns his principal fame burst from him in a very short space of time, not exceeding fifteen minutes. It was a sudden, impetuous flow, which seemed to exhaust itself.

Balzac, the finest writer in French prose, who gives vast majesty and harmony to his periods, has been known to bestow a week upon a single page of composition, and was never satisfied with the first production of his thoughts.

Martin Luther's literary labors were enormous. During an interval of less than thirty years he published seven hundred and fifteen volumes; some were pamphlets, but the most were large and elaborate treatises. He was very fond of his dog, which was ever by his side.

Calvin studied in his bed. Every morning at five or six o'clock he had book, manuscript and paper brought to him there, and worked on for hours together. If he had occasion to go out, on his return he undressed and went to bed again, there to resume his studies.

Byron was an exceedingly rapid writer and composer. He produced the "Bride of Abydos" in a single night; and it is said without even mending his pen. The pen is now preserved in the British Museum.

Pope never could compose without first doolmming for some time at the top of his voice, and thus rousing his nervous system to the fullest activity. He says "The things I have written quickest have always pleased me best."

Dr. Johnson preferred conversation to books, and owned that he had hardly read a single book through, declaring that the perpetual task of reading was as bad as slavery in the mine, or labor at the oar.

Causes why many Authors Sink into Oblivion.—Paradoxical as it may seem, the chief cause of the virtual oblivion of books is no longer their extinction, but the fond care with which they are preserved, and their immensely rapid multiplication. The press is more than a match for the moth and the worm, or the mouldering hand of time. Yet the great destroyer fulfills his commission burying books under the pyramid which is formed by their accumulation. It is a striking example of the impotence with which man struggles against the destiny which awaits him and his works, that the very means he takes to insure immortality, destroy it; that the very activity of the press, of the instrument by which he seemed to have taken pledges against time and fortune, is that which will make him the spoil of both. The books themselves may no longer die, but their spirit does; and they become like old men whose bodies have outlived their minds—a spectacle more piteous than death itself. It is really curious to look into the index of such learned writers as Jeremy Taylor, Cudworth, or Leibnitz, and to see the havoc which has been made on the memory of the greater part of the writers they cite, and who still exist, though no longer to be cited; of men who were their great contemporaries or immediate predecessors, and who are quoted by them just as Locke or Burke is quoted by us. Of scarcely one in ten of these grave authorities has the best informed student of our day read ten pages. The very names of vast numbers have all but perished; at all events, have died out of familiar remembrance. Let the student who flatters himself that he is not ill-informed, glance over the index of even such a work as Hallam's "History of European Literature"—designed only to record the more memorable names—and ask himself how many of the authors there mentioned he has read so much as even five pages? It will be enough to chastise all ordinary conceit of extensive attainments, and, perhaps as effectually as anything, teach a man that truest kind of knowledge of his own ignorance.—Henry Rogers.

How Grant was Victimized.—A Washington dispatch of the 23d ult. states that much surprise was occasioned by the presence of General Grant when the Committee from the Philadelphia Convention visited the White house to communicate the result to the country. It has transpired that General Grant was not present of his own accord, but through a prearranged plan of Johnson and the managers. Just before the appointed time came for the interview, the President sent for General Grant, saying he desired to see him on business. When the General had hastened over from his headquarters, and had entered the President's room, the Committee from Philadelphia was at once announced and ushered in. General Grant found himself a victim to the same cunning which so admirably controlled the great Convention.

Boarders Wanted.—The following allusion to ex-Governor Letcher, of Virginia, is made by a Lexington, Va., correspondent of the Richmond Times:

"Governor Letcher is looking remarkably well. He is quietly practicing law, living up to the letter of his parole, attending no public assemblages and not even, as yet, availing himself of the privilege given by the War Department, of addressing the people of his native county on the subject of the Valley Railroad. Impoverished by the war, and realizing but little ready money by the practice of his profession, he is greatly helped by his most amiable wife, who, in common with many other ladies of Lexington, is reduced to the necessity of keeping a boarding house."

Honors not so Easy.—John Morrisey's path to Congressional honors is not exactly to be strewn with roses. His nomination by Tammany Hall being accepted as a foregone conclusion, a large number of disaffected Democrats met in one of the rooms of the Metropolitan Hotel on Saturday evening last and after a thorough canvass of the matter, perfected an organization, and resolved to bring forward as an independent candidate for Congress Edward N. Dickinson, the well known engineer. A committee was also appointed to wait upon the leaders of the Union organization of the several wards of the Fifth District to secure concert of action.—Missouri Democrat.

Policy.—It is said that the Government has taken steps to stay the proceedings for the present in the matter of the confiscation of the late Confederate General Beauregard's estate, in Louisiana.

Silver Coin.—It will be five weeks next Monday, at noon, since the Cosmos Company took possession of this mine and commenced opening it. Two tunnels and two shafts were immediately commenced. The lower tunnel starts at Wade's Gulch and is in 270 feet from the beginning of the open cut; the upper one is in 130 feet. The upper tunnel starts in at a point little over fifty feet up the mountain side from the lower one, and makes the lower and upper levels not over twenty-eight feet apart. The upper shaft is sinking 70 feet north of the gulch and is down sixty-five feet; the lower one is at the mouth of the upper tunnel—twenty eight feet. Another shaft is commenced at the mouth of the lower tunnel, to be sunk sixty feet as soon as possible, from which it is proposed to make another level. Boarding-house, shop, and sleeping-house have been erected in the meantime. The ledge shows an average width of three feet—well defined and proven up for nearly eight hundred feet. The mill has been crushing rock from the mine for the past few weeks with satisfactory results. The bullion is worth an average of nearly $3 per ounce.—Owyhee Avalanche.

Lincoln Company.—This Company are still prosecuting development on the Albion. Have been crushing ore from it recently. With what results we do not know, but believe the Company have faith strong enough in the ultimate results to take a further extension of time on the property, and continue to prospect it. The More & Fogus failure has temporarily embarrassed them—as it has many others. They have labored early and late, and with all the foresight of man, to keep their mill employed steadily, and expect to do so still. The Company is but little involved, and nothing but unwise impatience on the part of their creditors will make any change in their operations. To have asked or expected more of men than the Lincoln resident officers have accomplished would have been unreasonable. The Company is perfectly solvent, all nonsense to the contrary notwithstanding.—Owyhee Avalanche.

"Will you take the life of General Grant or Admiral Farragut, this morning?" asked a newsman of an elderly lady who had stopped to look over the publications on his stall. "Law me, no!" she replied; "they may live to the end of their days for all of me. I hain't anything ag'in 'em."

"Why does a razor cut better for being dipped in hot water?" The edges of all tools instead of being perfectly smooth are really toothed like a saw, and when the razor is dipped in hot water, it causes these little teeth to expand, thus rendering the distance between smaller, and consequently giving the razor a smoother edge.

Gratifying.—With the single exception of the Herald, every Democratic paper in the State, including the Reporter, Review, and State Rights Democrat, oppose the election of Nesmith. Nesmith may purchase votes, but there is one thing, thank God, he cannot purchase—that is the Democratic press of the State.—Reporter.

The Post Office Department has recently introduced boxes instead of mail bags, for the transmission of letters, on all the through routes. These are made of wood, of some two inches in thickness, and strongly bound with iron. They are of the width and depth of an ordinary letter, and of varying length. The design in their use is to secure the safety of the letters, by keeping them together and having the box containing them delivered to the post office clerk having charge of sorting the letters. Heretofore letters have been easily purloined from the bags, but a thief would have to steal one whole box in order to crib one letter.

Valentia.—The Irish terminus of the Atlantic Cable, is an island of about six thousand acres in extent. It has three proprietors, of whom the Knight of Kerry is the chief, the others being Trinity College, Dublin, and Colonel Herbert, of Muckross. The population is about two thousand.

SOMETHING NEW!

THE NEW LIGHT!

DANFORD'S

Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

Artificial light of some sort, is a universal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps. It is a cheaper artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six feet flat burner for less than ½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufresne, corner of Morrison and First streets.
